HOOVER'S SPEECH CREATES LITTLE INTEREST ABROAD

IChiesge Tribuse Free Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 12.—Only lukewarm interest in Secretary Hoover's speech of acceptance yesterday was exihited in London daily newspapers. Only short summaries were printed in the news columns, and only two editorials—and these were brief and uncritical. Referring to his farm relief proposals, the Daily Telegraph says: "Al Smith's proposals are certainly not likely to be less attractive than Hoover's."

Mrs. Catherino Magliano, 25, a bride of less than a year, died at the Evangelical Deaconess hospital last night, the third victim of a mysterious poisoning in an apartment hotel at 1940 Lincoln avenue.

Her husband, Joseph, 28, died on Thursday in their home on the fourth floor of the hotel. Both had become ill on Wednesday. In a sixth floor apartment lived Miss Alma Lee, 27.

The Maglianos and the two nurses, he said, were not acquaintances and had not partaken of the same food at any time.

"Magliano and his wife dined Wednesday with relatives," said the coroner. "The two girls had been taking their meals with triends of their own. None of these friends became ill. Shops in the neighborhood have been investigated and no trace of poison found.

So far Dr. W. D. McNally, coroner's chemist, has not been able to determine the nature of the poison that caused death. He is making an analysis which will require at least a week to complete. His chief, Coroner Oscar Wolff, said that several theories had been advanced to account for the tragedies, but that all had apparently been denied by known facts.

Nally has completed his tests."

At the hotel it was reported yester-day that two men representing themselves as internes from the Augustana hospital had gone to the nurser' rooms and taken samples of food and the contents of a bottle, apparently gin, to have analyzed.

The politicians are giving Dr. Hubert Work the raspbarry for his declaration that the tariff will be the dominant issue. Prohibition is the main thing the people are talking about. As to the tariff, in a center which depends on protective tariff, the general comment is that the Democrats at Houston swipped the old "Lorse." eral comment is that the Democrats at Houston swiped the old "Iowa idea" from the Republicans, while Al Smith made a protective tariff chairman of the Democratic national committee in the person of Raskob.

Hoosierdom is wondering whether or not this is not inclining basic indus-

So the Gary region will come in for concentrated effort by the Hoover and Smith camps. Lake county is to Indiana politics what the Twentieth ward is to Chicago politics. Within the last two years suspicions have been voiced that a little "expert" work in Lake county decided an Indiana election. So efforts are planned to head off possible ballot box frauds.

As with all his deliberate public utterances, the acceptance speech of Mr. Hoover will impress the public with its solidity of thought. It is the utterance of an engineer, a builder, an executive, a man who thinks carefully and who expresses his thought most naturally in action rather than in words. It disdains, or at any rate lacks, rhetorical ornament or those devices with which the orator decorates and enforces his appeal.

And yet it is a speech that reveals political good judgment, dealing tactfully with controversial issues and offering a minimum surface to the necessity of praparedness for defense. Fairly

In thoughtful and patriotic consideration of the THE TRIBUNE'S opinion the most important sub nation. jects before the nation discussed by Mr. Hoover are prohibition and its enforcement, agricultural relief, immigration policy, inland waterway development, foreign policy, and national defense.

As to prohibition and its enforcement, Mr. Hoover reiterates in effect the statement he made in response to Senator Borah's interrogation of the candidates for the Republican nomination He does not favor the repeal of the 18th amendment and pledges efficient enforcement of the stances departed from them—if we follow a policy mon sense compels us to realize that grave abuses fundamental American principles, of eventual have occurred and must be remedied, a wise consequences, or of the interrelation of our na method of correction being derived from an organized searching investigation of fact and causes. in administration it is only too easy to adopt But he declares that modification of enforcement means plausible for immediate results but delusive laws which would permit that which the constitution forbids is nullification, which the American to fritter away the liberties through which we

Mr. Hoover is doubtless justified by the limits of his address in not discussing the profound issues which the 18th amendment raises, issues of constitutional law, issues of political science, issues of moral law. He goes, at least for this occasion. perhaps as far as he could be expected in putting himself unequivocally upon record as opposed to compare with that of the "state where the tail corn the repeal of the 18th amendment, giving it a grows," but a hearing was conducted before the blessing as a "great social and economic experi-tariff commission at Washington last week at the ment." in this comment upon Mr. Hoover's speech. Mr. Hoover's discussion of inland waterway de velopment takes him into a field of statesmanship in which he is particularly at home, and where his experience and special powers give assurance of great accomplishment. Mr. Hoover reminds us that "every drop which runs to the sea with out yielding its full economic service is a waste, and we know of no man in our public life who is more likely to establish this maxim as an active principle of national policy if given sufficient op portunity. The interest of every American in repossibilities of waterway development for the increase of the nation's wealth hardly needs statement, and Mr. Hoover's suppose the statement of the increase of the nation's wealth hardly needs statement, and Mr. Hoover's suppose the statement of the increase of the nation's wealth hardly needs statement, and Mr. Hoover's suppose the statement of the statement o ment, and Mr. Hoover's survey of the survey prehensive address on public questions it is but in two pound cans or smaller by comprehensive address on public questions it is but in two pound cans or smaller by comprehensive address on public questions it is but in two pound cans or smaller by comprehensive address on public questions it is but in two pound cans or smaller by comprehensive address on public questions it is but in two pound cans or smaller by comprehensive address on public questions it is but in two pound cans or smaller by comprehensive address on public questions it is but in two pound cans or smaller by comprehensive address on public questions it is but in two pound cans or smaller by comprehensive address on public questions it is but in two pound cans or smaller by comprehensive address on public questions it is but in two pound cans or smaller by comprehensive address on public questions it is but in two pound cans or smaller by comprehensive address on public questions it is but in two pound cans or smaller by comprehensive address on public questions it is but in two pound cans or smaller by comprehensive address an outline, is a reminder of his unusual grasp of the whole subject and his exceptional equipment for dealing with it practically and effectively. It is difficult to overestimate the benefits which would flow to all the American people from a masterly development of our inland water way possibilities. There are, on the other hand possibilities of huge public waste and public corruption if this great national opportunity is exploited without clear thinking, disinterestedness, and firm resistance to private greed and political or bureaucratic ambition. But as to these dangers, MR. HOOVER'S ACCEPTANCE, we believe, Mr. Hoover may safely be assumed to be awake, and as President would be on guard. In the broad field of our foreign policy Mr. Hoover's reference is to the at this time most prominent phase, that of the maintenance of peace which he defines truly as the primary object of our foreign policy. But on this topic he very wisely emphasizes the doctrine, announced by Washington at the beginning of our national life, that, in Mr.

RARE VALUES THROUGH DIRECT IMPORTING

Oriental Rugs

The far-reaching merchandising operations of this establishment may be better realized when it is stated that in this one district where the splendid wearing, silky, long-pile SPARTA Rugs are woven, Nahigian Brothers control the output of a large number of hand looms, operated by the most skilled of Oriental weavers.

A new importation of these excellent examples of Oriental Rug weaving is offered at prices which we are confident cannot be even approached in Chicago.

The designs are the much-admired open floral patterns in blues, tans and greens on rose and flame grounds; also in rose, tans, light blues and green on dark blue and tan grounds. The larger rugs have as many as six borders, narrow and wide, in harmonious contrasts; the smaller ones four.

In the August Sale of Furs

Our patrons are continually remarking on a certain novel feature of our new fur salon . . . the sense of its being apart

... of its giving an atmosphere simulating the very conditions under which you would ordinarily wear your furs . . . the boulevards, hotel, or theater. This atmosphere is as much a part of the new fur salon as its extensive facilities for displaying furs . . . enabling you to select from one of the finest and largest assortments of peltries ever offered during August.

Caracul and Broadtail, two ultra-smart furs for the coming season are featured in our Fur Salon. For instance there is the black galyah, pictured, its beauty en-hanced by stunning collar and cuffs of summer ermine.

The trouble is intensified by the peculiar Danish farming system, un-der which, although 90 per cent of the farmers are freeholders, every farm is mortgaged almost to its full value. This again is due to the pe-culiar financial system by which the farmer, even if he owns capital, prefarmer, even if he owns capital, prefers to place his savings in a bank, earning 5 per cent, and borrow money for working capital at 3½ to 4 per been made on the basis of inflated currency, which, when stabilization raised the value of the krone, makes interest difficult to earn.

The whole situation was discussed of the Central Agricultural council, ich is the supreme governing body of the farmers' organizations throughout Denmark, including the farmers' peratives, through which all buy-and selling is done.

Apart from the mortgage system, Mr. Holm explained, there is another condition peculiar to Denmark which makes the farmer's position difficult. Practically the whole agricultural pro-duction of Denmark is exported, the chief market being England. Some

Two years ago a Danish farmer who was paid for his exports in sterling received in exchange about thirty-five kroner per pound sterling. Now he receives only eighteen kroner per pound. Sterling prices remain roughly half the number of kroner, while do mestic prices applying to the goods and supplies he buys remain almost on an inflated basis. The latest statistics show that the lindex number for export goods now is 140, and, the domestic index 200. Naturally the farmers are demanding relief, and the government is anxious to give it. Recently a royal commission was appointed to investigate the whole situation.

Baffled Science Turns to Mere Luck.

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN.

Age old conclusions and deductions of the scientific world were challenged yesterday when science was asked to accept as an actuality the element of chance or luck, which it has heretofore recognized only under the designation "law of probability." Dr. D. W. Swann of Philadelphia, director of the Bartol foundation of the Franklin institute, made the suggestion to the American Chemical Society insti-"Science heretofore," he declared,

"has always felt that everything that happened could be traced to some cause, which in turn always had a lefinite effect. But now we know definite effect. But now we know that the results of many purely physical phenomena, such as the trans-mission of heat, depend upon what science inadequately calls cience inadequately calls 'laws of robability,' which is just another ame for chance, or luck. Cites Electric Molecules.

"It has long been known that some of the molecules of the air are electrically charged. Yet when we come right down to actual figuring, only one in one hundred million millions is so charged. There is no apparent is so charged. There is no apparent reason why one of these air molecules, rather than any other, should have this electrical charge—which makes possible lightning, rain, thunder and other happenings of the air. Science has been able to account for this in enon in terms of luck-which has now become a new type of scien-tific thought." An equally vast field of speculation so opened by Dr. Swann's reference to the theories of the origin of existicists, that laws of chance as introduced into his own subject were merely misfits for something more fundamental has in the last year received a severe flow. For in the most modern development of atomic structure, old ideas of the universality of the laws which control the actions of the fundamental entity in all physics the electron—have add to give way to the laws of chance.

"No longer do we say that if an electric field, a certain consequence will definitely follow. We say only that there is a probability that such and such will take place.

MARINES THROW TACTICS TO WIND TO SPEED MARCH

guan Ambush.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.

[Chiengo Tribune Press Service.] BAN FERNANDO, Nicaragua. Down a steep, winding clay road, the expedition made slow progress. Two trailers, each loaded with three tons of supplies, drawn by caterpillar trac-tors, followed noisily in the rear of fifteen marines mounted on mules. A precipice sloped down on one side of the trail, a stony hill rose sharply on "A perfect spot for an ambush," Lieut. T. H. Cartwright, leader of the party, remarked, pointing ahead to where the road led through a cut. But we can't do anything about it except be prepared."

Is Ambush Inexcusable?

"Doesn't the school of military tac tics say something about an ambush being inexcusable?" queried THE TRIB-UNE correspondent who had joined this march through the northern hills of Nicaragua.
"You see the nature of the country, don't you?" retorted the lieutenant. "If every detachment was to send out patrols to scout the country ahead, not more than 3 or 4 miles could be covered in a day.

"We haven't got men enough to follow military theories in this country. This expedition must cover the 14 miles of bad trail between Ocotal and San Fernando in one day."

Pass Treacherous Traps. The party filed through the cut. In the shrubbery which lined both sides of the road, a hundred bandits might have lain in concealment and poured a devasting fire down. At least one member of the expedition breathed easier when the place was passed.

Marine officers in Nicaragua erupt with a loud verbal bang when they read criticisms, written in the United States, of the fact that marine patrols have fallen into several ambushes They point out that the nature of the country and a scarcity of men forbids proper reconnoissance of territory ahead. In spite of that fact, only three ambushes have been recorded in more than thirty engagements.

This expedition, from Ocotal to Sar Ferdando, was typical of marches in the hills where most of the fighting with bandits has taken place. The road was perilous in many places, even for the sure-footed mules. Eleve rivers, luckily low because of a scarof rain for a week, were forded! Build Roads as They Go.

The progress of the tractors on this trail, where only bull carts have traveled before, appeared little short of miraculous. Three times during the day, the marines discarded their rifles for pick and shovel and literally built road through the forests.

One of the tractors was driven by Thomas Pietrzak, 8338 Saginaw avenue, Chicago, who not so long ago was piloting a taxi cab through that city's streets. A tractor driver is looked upon with vast respect by his companions. His life is in his own hands several times a day.

At times the road ran on a level through the valleys. The white bone of cattle which had perished in the dry season lined the trail. A thatched hut with mud side walls was occa-sionally passed. The householder, his and brood of children stood in doorway and smilingly waved greetings to the marines.

Here, in a country where the na-ives have been reported as hostile to American intervention, the apparent friendliness of the inhabitants was astonishing to an observer.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN. [Chicago Tribune Press Service.] St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 12.—That rare ombination-a perfect attack and a marked the toil of the Cubs today in George Jennings, Chicago tennis the closing day of their foreign invastar, is national public parks cham- sion and they made it two straight over the league leading but tottering

Cardinals by 4 to 2. The pitching that made the defense almost impregnable came from the right arm of big Pat Malone, who blew the ball past the slug-ging Red Birds with such speed that only seven hits were produced against which exceeded by one the number of strikeouts he slipped to them in the exchange of greetings The big Irishman conducted his with such impressiveness hat hits were paired on him in only two innings. One of these was the second, when a run resulted. The one of the lone hits was a homer by Jim Bottomley, this occurring in the eighth, when one run more or less was of no particular importance, Cuyler, Wilson, Hit Homers, The Cub attack was perfect mainis ecause of long range hits that left the playing field. One of these was an effort on the part of Kiki Cuyler with a mate on base. Another waz a similar smack by Hack Wilson, giving him his twenty-seventh for season. Both these were created in the opening inning, thereby giving the Chicago delegates a three run margin that they never permitted to get away. Then the Cubs completed their attack with another tally in the third, after which Lefty Reinhart went to the resue of Flint Rehm and prevented even the semblance of another hitting

The fun in the first inning started with Maguire beating out a hit to Frisch after Beck had been retired. Cuyler stepped up and slapped the ball into the hands of a shirtsleeved spectator in right field. Maguire pre-ceded Kiki around the bases, but not to the accompaniment of any music from the distressed populace. Not wishing to have his luster dimmed. Wilson, the Hack, waddled up and planted Rhem's next pitch onto the roof of the pavilion in right. So as to keep down the suicidal inclinations of the natives, Malone per mitted the Cardinals to meas him up to the extent of one run in the second. Hafey opened with a two base drive that popped against the wall in drive that popped against the wall in left field. A wild pitch let the run-ner move to third. Harper popped to Grimm, and then the famous or in-famous "Oil" Smith slipped a single into left, Hafey registering.

Cubs Chase Rhem.

Cuyler's speed and batting skill with a little assistance from Stephenson presented the Cubs with another run in the third. After Maguire's demise, Cuyler beat out a slow bounder to Frisch. Wilson fanned, which appeared to be an item of keen enjoyment for the customers. Cuyler threw himself into high speed and stole second into high speed and stole second. Stephenson crashed a single to right

The Cubs pressed Rhem again in the fourth with hits by Hartnett and Malone, and while they didn't score, they at least had the satisfaction of forcing the South Carolinian to relinquish his job.

AT KALAMAZOO

After the little one run rumpus in the second, Malone didn't get himself into another ticklish situation until the seventh when two hits and an on running across the field and ng down High's line drive. nley Hits Twenty-fifth Homer.

After slipping through the seventh successfully Malone decided to warm up. One hit was made off his daz-aling speed in the last two innings. This was the homer that Bottomley knocked into the right field seats in the eighth. Bottomley's slap raised his total to twenty-five for the season

The Cubs went home tonight with record of nine wins and eleven defeats during their journey. They have nothing to do until Tuesday when the Giants are scheduled to swoop down on Wrigley field.

Roguish Eye to Race Voltear at Hawthorne

BY FRENCH LANE.

Ald. J. J. Coughlin's Roguish Eye and the Nevada Farm stable's Voltear will fight it out for the western 2 year old championship when they hook up in the Hawthorne Juvenile stakes next Saturday afternoon, Voltear demonstrated earlier in the season that he was master of all the youngsters which cared to take issue with him. But Roguish Eye has been ning along so splendidly in his work lately that many turfmen and everybody in the First ward believe he'll hand Voltear a trimming when they clash in the 2 year old fixture.
